Article 1. Purpose

The purpose of these Regulations shall be to set forth necessary matters with respect to the kinds of negotiable securities to be deposited with the Exchange as appropriation for market entry deposit and the appropriable amount thereof upon depositing in accordance with Article 12.4 of the Trading Member Regulations.

Article 2. Kinds, Appropriable Amount and Revaluation of Eligible Securities

2.1 The kinds of the negotiable securities to be deposited with the Exchange as appropriation for market entry deposit shall be those listed in the Appendix attached hereto, and the appropriable amount upon depositing of the same shall be the amount not exceeding the market price thereof provided for in Note 4 to the said Appendix as of the applicable valuation date multiplied by the applicable rate set forth in the said Appendix.

2.2 A valuation date set forth in Article 2.1 above shall be the last business day of each calendar month (if such business day falls on a holiday of the relevant financial instruments exchange, it shall be the immediately preceding a business day of such exchange). Provided, however, whenever the Exchange determines it necessary to do so, the Exchange may designate any other valuation date.

2.3 The appropriable amount upon depositing of eligible securities shall be calculated based on the market price on the valuation date immediately preceding the date on which the same are deposited, applying the method set forth in Article 2.1 above. Provided, however, the appropriable amount of treasury securities of the United States of America upon their depositing shall be calculated as the market price thereof on the valuation date immediately preceding the date on which the same are deposited, multiplied by the applicable rate set forth in the Appendix attached hereto and converted into the Japanese Yen amount at the Telegraphic Transfer Buying (TTB) Rate prevailing on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market on the second (2nd) business day prior to the date of deposit.

2.4 The new appropriable amount of the deposited eligible securities shall be applied from the closing of the day session on the second business day following the valuation date. Provided, however, the new appropriable amount of treasury securities of the United States of America which have been deposited shall be calculated as the market price thereof on the valuation date multiplied by the applicable rate set forth in the Appendix attached hereto and converted into the Japanese Yen amount at the TTB Rate prevailing on the Tokyo Foreign Exchange Market on the business day immediately preceding the said business day, and shall be applied from the closing of the day session of that business day.

2.5 If any deficiency arises in the market entry deposit as a result of application of a new appropriable amount of the deposited eligible securities in accordance with Article 2.4 above, the relevant Trading Member shall deposit the amount of cash or negotiable securities not less than the deficiency as the market entry deposit with the Exchange by 11:00 a.m. on any business day by the 6th business day (excluding holidays of financial instruments exchanges in Japan) from and including the business day immediately next following the date on which the deficiency occurred.

Article 3. Adjustment to Fractional Amount

With respect to the negotiable securities set forth in the Appendix attached hereto, any fractional amount arising from calculation of the appropriable amount of those negotiable securities shall be adjusted as follows:

(1) With respect to stocks set forth in 5 of the Appendix attached hereto:

Any fractional amount less than one (1) Yen shall be discarded.

(2) With respect to the negotiable securities other than those set forth in (1) above:

Any fractional amount less than one-hundredth (1/100) Yen shall be discarded.

Article 4. Manner of Deposit of Eligible Securities

4.1 The Japanese Government bonds set forth in 1 of the Appendix attached hereto may be deposited by way of transfer to the account opened and maintained in the name of the Exchange with the Bank of Japan; provided, however, in this case, during the suspension period of book entry of Japanese Government bond, no claim shall be made for return of deposited Japanese Government bonds covered by the JGB Book-entry System.

4.2 The stocks set forth in 5 of the Appendix attached hereto may be deposited by way of transfer to the account opened and maintained in the name of the Exchange with Japan Securities Depository Center, Inc.

4.3 The treasury securities of the United States of America set forth in 6 of the Appendix attached hereto may be deposited by way of transfer to the account opened and maintained in the name of the Exchange with an international clearing and settlement organization for securities as designated by the Exchange; provided, however, in this case, the Trading Member shall obtain the prior consent of the Exchange to making of the deposit.

Article 5. Exclusion from Scope of Eligible Securities

If any bonds listed in 4(2) of the Appendix attached hereto or stocks listed in 5 of the Appendix attached hereto designated as eligible securities for market entry deposit fall under the criteria for delisting at all financial instruments exchanges in Japan on which such negotiable securities are listed for any reason other than those specified in (a) through (c) below, such bonds or stocks, as well as the bonds issued by the issuer of such stocks shall be excluded from the eligible securities for market entry deposit as from the business day immediately following the day on which they fall under the criteria:

- (1) The issuer of the stock becomes a wholly-owned subsidiary of a company whose stock is listed on an exchange financial instruments market in Japan (hereinafter called "Listed Company") as a consequence of share exchange or share transfer; or
- (2) The issuer of the stock is merged with a Listed Company; or
- (3) The stock is delisted for any other reason and the stock delivered in exchange therefor is expected to be promptly listed on an exchange financial instruments market in Japan.

Article 6. Amendment to Appropriate Amount

With respect to the eligible securities for market entry deposit, the Exchange may amend the appropriate amount thereof if the market price thereof falls below the appropriate amount or when the Exchange deems necessary.

Article 7. Ownership of Eligible Securities

A Trading Member may deposit as eligible securities only those negotiable securities in respect of which it is the substantive owner.

Article 8. Treatment of Interest Payment and Redemption of Treasury Securities of the United States of America

8.1 A Trading Member who deposits treasury securities of the United States of America as eligible securities shall receive return of those securities prior to receipt of payment of interest thereon or redemption thereof.

8.2 If the Trading Member who deposited any treasury securities of the United States of America as eligible securities failed to receive return thereof in violation of the provisions of Article 8.1 above so that the Exchange received the interest and/or the redemption money, the Exchange shall deliver such interest and/or the redemption money to such Trading Member, provided that any and all costs and expenses incurred for the receipt and delivery shall be borne by the Trading Member.

8.3 In the case set forth in Article 8.2 above, the Exchange shall not be liable to indemnify the Trading Member for any damages resulting from the Exchange's receipt of the interest and/or the redemption money.

Article 9. Prohibition of Deposit of Negotiable Securities issued by Itself, etc.

9.1 A Trading Member shall not be allowed to deposit the negotiable securities issued by any of the persons set forth below as eligible securities.

- (1) the Trading Member itself
- (2) Parent company of the Trading Member (which means a parent company defined in Article 8, Paragraph 3 of the Rules Concerning Terms, Forms and Procedures for Financial Statements, etc. (Finance Ministry Ordinance No. 59 of 1963) and the same shall apply in (4) below)
- (3) A subsidiary of the Trading Member (which means a subsidiary defined in Article 8, Paragraph 3 of the Rules Concerning Terms, Forms and Procedures for Financial Statements, etc. and the same shall apply in Item

(4) below)

- (4) A subsidiary of a parent company of the Trading Member

9.2 A Trading Member who deposits the negotiable securities set forth in 4 or 5 of Appendix attached hereto shall submit the document specified in each Item below at the time of deposit of such negotiable securities in accordance with the classification specified below;

- (1) A Trading Member who is a financial instruments firm engaged in the first financial instruments business
A report specified in Article 173, Item 1 of the Cabinet Office Ordinance on financial instruments business, etc. (Cabinet Office Ordinance No. 52 of 2007) (the “Ordinance” in Article 9.2(2) below) ;
- (2) A Trading Member who is a registered financial institution
A report specified in Article 188, Item 1 of the Ordinance
- (3) A Trading Member who is a financial instruments firm not engaged in the first financial instruments business
Either report specified in the preceding two Items or any other document equivalent thereto

Article 10. Restrictions on Eligible Securities

If it is deemed inappropriate to value or receive eligible securities in accordance with Article 2 hereof due to excess volatility in the market, etc. or when deemed necessary by the Exchange, the Exchange may take any action set forth below or any other measures deemed necessary by it;

- (1) Reduction of the rates by which the market prices are multiplied as set forth in Appendix attached hereto
- (2) Restrictions on receipt of certain negotiable securities as eligible securities
- (3) Restrictions on deposit of negotiable securities as market entry deposit

SUPPLEMENTARY PROVISIONS

These amendments shall take effect as from September 28, 2009.
