- (2) If it has short positions under more than one (1) sale contract or long positions under more than one (1) purchase contract, identification of the sale contract in respect of the short position(s) to be reduced or the purchase contract in respect of the long position(s) to be reduced

CHAPTER XIII-II.

SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR EQUITY INDEX DAILY FUTURES TRANSACTIONS

Section 1. Equity Index Settlement Price

Article 90-12. Equity Index Settlement Price

90-12.1 With respect to an Equity Index Daily Futures transaction, the Exchange shall set the price (hereinafter called the “Equity Index Settlement Price”) after the close of the Market Trading Period of each trading day (meaning the trading day specified in Article 2(15) of the Equity Index Special Provisions, which interpretation shall equally apply hereinafter in this Chapter XIII-II). The Equity Index Settlement Price so established shall be used as the indicative price to calculate the initial Equity Index revaluation profit or loss set forth in Article 90-14 hereof, the daily Equity Index revaluation profit or loss set forth in Article 90-15 hereof for that trading day and the final Equity Index revaluation profit or loss set forth in Article 90-18.2 hereof, respectively, and shall be advised to Daily Futures Clearing Members who conducts clearing business for Equity Index Daily Futures transactions.

90-12.2 An Equity Index Settlement Price shall be obtained by reference to the contract price of the relevant Equity Index Daily Futures contract that has been executed by Market-Making Method during such specific period of time before the close of the Market Trading Period for the relevant trading day as may be determined by the Exchange; provided, however, that if the Exchange judges any Equity Index Settlement Price so calculated is inappropriate, the Exchange may adopt another appropriate price as the Equity Index Settlement Price.

90-12.3 The Equity Index Settlement Price shall be determined in accordance with the conditions separately prescribed by the Exchange if there is no contract price during the specific period of time referred to in Article 90-12.2 above.

90-12.4 Notwithstanding Article 90-12.2 and Article 90-12.3 above, an Equity Index Settlement Price on a certain Reset Date (meaning the Reset Date defined in Article 2 (25) of the Equity Index Special Provisions; the same interpretation shall equally apply hereinafter) of an Equity Index Daily Futures contract whose such Reset Date has arrived shall be the Reset Price (meaning the Reset Price defined in Article 90-18-2.1; the same interpretation shall equally apply in Article 90-18).

Section 2. Rollover

Article 90-13. Rollover

If neither filing of offsetting notification (meaning the “filing of offsetting notification” defined in Article 90-20.1(1) hereof; the same interpretation shall equally apply hereinafter) nor execution of offsetting transaction (meaning the “execution of offsetting transaction” defined in Article 90-20.1(2) hereof; the same interpretation shall equally apply hereinafter) is made for the short position or long position arising under an Equity Index Daily Futures transaction until the close of the Market Trading Period for each trading day on which such position exists, those positions whose contract day is that trading day shall be discharged at the close of the said Market Trading Period, and concurrently therewith, positions under the same terms and conditions as those of the discharged positions, except for their contract day being the trading day immediately following that trading day (with respect to the Equity Index Daily Futures contract whose last trading day has arrived, the Reset Date) shall newly be created between the Exchange and the Daily Futures Clearing Member who has held the discharged position. The said discharge and creation of positions shall be called a “rollover” in this Chapter XIII-II only.

Article 90-14. Initial Equity Index Revaluation Profit or Loss

With respect to an Equity Index Daily Futures contract which is newly executed, where the contract is rolled over and there is a difference between the Equity Index Settlement Price for the trading day on which the contract is executed and the contract price of that contract, an Equity Index variation shall arise from that contract at the positive or negative calculatory amount obtained based on that difference (hereinafter called “initial Equity Index revaluation profit or loss”).

Article 90-15. Daily Equity Index Revaluation Profit or Loss

With respect to an Equity Index Daily Futures contract which has been executed under a transaction on or before the trading day immediately preceding any given trading day, where the contract is rolled over and there is a difference between the Equity Index Settlement Price for that trading day and the Equity Index Settlement Price on the trading day immediately preceding that trading day, an Equity Index variation shall arise from that contract at the positive or negative calculatory amount obtained based on that difference (hereinafter called “daily Equity Index revaluation profit or loss”).

Article 90-16. Daily Interest Rate Amount

90-16.1 If rollover is made with respect to a position for an Equity Index Daily Futures contract and the settlement date designated for the settlement referred to in Article 90-18.1 hereof with respect to such position is postponed by such rollover, a positive or negative calculatory amount each calculated for the postponed period in the manner separately prescribed by the Exchange for each type of Equity Index Daily Futures contract (hereinafter called “daily interest rate amount”) shall arise.

90-16.2 The daily interest rate amount shall be a positive amount for the holder of the short position under an Equity Index Daily Futures contract and shall be a negative amount for the holder of the long position thereunder at the close of the trading day.

90-16.3 If the Exchange judges that the daily interest rate amount calculated in the manner set forth in Article 90-16.1 and Article 90-16.2 above is improper, the Exchange shall determine the daily interest rate amount in the manner deemed appropriate by the Exchange.

Article 90-17. Dividend Amount

90-17.1 With respect to the positions taken for an Equity Index Daily Futures contract, if payment of dividend is expected on an issue comprising the equity index traded under the Equity Index Daily Futures contract, a positive or negative calculatory amount calculated in the manner separately prescribed by the Exchange to be correspondent to the theoretical amount by which the expected dividend payment would affect the equity index (hereinafter called “dividend amount”) shall arise.

90-17.2 If payment of dividend on any issue comprising the equity index traded under an Equity Index Daily Futures contract as specified in Article 90-17.1 above is expected, the amount correspondent to the dividend amount shall be a positive figure for the holder of the long position under such Equity Index Daily Futures contract and shall be a negative figure for the holder of the short position thereunder as at the close of the trading day which is the same as the last purchase day by which the acquirer of such issue can be vested the dividend right.

90-17.3 In the case of Article 90-17.2 above, if the said last purchase day does not fall on a trading day of the Equity Index Daily Futures contract referred to therein, the words “the trading day which is the same as the last purchase day” used therein shall be read as “the trading day which is immediately preceding the last purchase day” for the purpose of application thereof.

90-17.4 The provisions of Articles 90-17.1 through 90-17.3 above shall not apply to DAX® Daily Futures contracts with Reset Date, Gold ETF Daily Futures contracts with Reset Date, WTI ETF Daily Futures contracts with Reset Date, Silver ETF Daily Futures contracts with Reset Date and Platinum ETF Daily Futures contracts with Reset Date.

90-26.2 If a difference arises between the FX Clearing Settlement Price on the trading day for the short position or long position for each type of FX Clearing Futures transactions subject to the Collective Offsetting and the price set forth in each Item below as a consequence of such Collective Offsetting, a fixed Mark-to-Market Variation shall arise at the positive or negative calculatory amount obtained based on that difference:

- (1) Position of sale contract or purchase contract newly executed on the trading day: Contract price of such position
- (2) Position that has arisen from rollover (meaning the rollover specified in Article 90-27 hereof) at the close of the Market Trading Period of the trading day immediately preceding such trading day: FX Clearing Settlement Price on the trading day immediately preceding such trading day

90-27.2 The discharge and arising of positions under Article 90-27.1 above shall be called a “rollover” in this Chapter XIII-III.
